

Father's response to daughter "Divorcing" Parents

Today my daughter in Mauritius declared that after some consideration and completely unassisted by others that unless my wife and I completely renounce and turn our back on the concerned parents group she would have absolutely nothing to do with us. She refused to discuss the reasons for this decision. She said the Lord had laid this on her heart.

We were as a family planning a get together in April and she has been offered a ticket to join us but cant now because of our association with the concerned parents group. It must be noted that today was a public holiday and my daughter spent the day with CTMI leaders and members including Geoff Brown where she no doubt received this counsel. We cannot understand how concern for our children can be considered such a sin. We can only conclude that my daughter's mind has been tampered with by leaders who have a secret agenda and who revel in their control over these young minds. We have been accused of telling lies. My question is what lies and can we discuss them?

Let it be noted that this declaration of my daughter to have nothing further to do with the parents who have raised her and nurtured her through thick and thin all her life has achieved only one thing... we are now seriously concerned parents. The thing that seriously concerns us is the slavish and unquestioning worship that these children have for their leaders. In the light of the recent sexual allegations and other stories we feel even more keenly the need to expose and reveal. I am convinced there are much more things that are hidden but will come out in time.

She will be heralded as a hero by her gang of peers but I think many who have their brains intact and are parents will note this declaration for what it really is...it is a desperate effort by the controlling body to manipulate a group who are causing discomfort in their business, by exposing and revealing the truth behind the lie that is CTMI... We are not going away, we have too much at stake...we love our children and will not give up this struggle to wrest them away from CTMI's unhealthy influence in their lives.

Try another tactic this one has only strengthened our resolve

In Jesus name I write these words,
